

REMARKS OF HON. J. M. S. CAUSIN AT THE BLADENSBURG CELEBRATION, JULY 4, 1844.

Mr. Causin, after referring to the principles of the two parties of the country, and briefly reviewing their claims upon the consideration of the people, then made a stirring appeal to his constituents, and besought them to bestow every energy and endeavor they possessed towards the advancement of the principles they held in common with the Whig party. He called upon them to do their duty; and if there be one Whig, said he, within the sound of my voice, who falters in the glorious cause in which he is engaged, if his ardor be not yet revived, if his energy be yet unnerved, and the every feeling of his whole heart and soul be not yet alive to the importance of the eventful crisis, then I conjure him, by his own and his country's welfare, to arouse from his lethargy, to rekindle the fires of '40 not yet flickering in the splendor of their victory, ay, I would advise him by every tie of interest and of patriotism to visit our neighbors of the District of Columbia, and there relume the expiring flame of his bosom from that vestal lamp, whose pure and holy light the Whigs of that place have kept, and still keep, burning with the undying fervor of vigils, besetting, and bracing, and exhilarating their Whig brethren of the States, and perpetually illumining our country's Capitol as an ever-standing altar of Whig principles! There he might see what men can do, who have no incentive but their country's good, no sinister motive of self interest by procuring through the elective franchise the honors and high places of Government, no base and sordid spirit, calling up an equally base and despicable pretence of patriotism; but with exertions as pure and undefiled as the native fires of their bosoms, they have zeal without reward, energy without gain, determination without incitement, and the most vigorous action without the slightest prospect from its exertion, except the honor and the happiness of their common country. I have read of Grecian heroism, of Spartan courage, of Roman firmness; but there are none of these qualities which in my opinion command so much admiration from mankind, as that of beholding a community of individuals, with a fixed and unbending decision, adhering, in the midst of power and might, to their opinions and sentiments. To see them disregarding oppression, and to the very last, firm to principle and to patriotism, notwithstanding their dearest interests were retarded, perhaps sacrificed, by resistance: ay, too, to observe them in the very mouth of the lion's den unfrightened and unawed by either threats or denunciations, was, I say, in my estimation, an exertion of the sterner and nobler faculties of the human soul, which shows to the world a scene of moral sublimity and grandeur rarely to be found. I feel, fellow citizens, in giving my feeble testimony in behalf of the people of that District, that I also bespeak a portion of the praise for my own generous and high minded constituents, for a part of them are but "bone of our bone, and sinew of our sinew." They are as children wandering from the threshold of their fathers, who turn with a fervor of devotion and affection towards their parental domicile, and feel and know, if persecution and oppression for opinions' sake should befall them in their present situation, that within its venerable halls there is left a niche where in common with ourselves they may enjoy the full fruition of that religious and civil freedom therein established by our and their ancestors, and preserved by posterity. Maryland never yielded up her territory to become an object of neglect and experiment for those who can not, dare not face their own constituents with the exquisite humbugs they attempt to fasten upon others, to whom they are not responsible. I feel for that neglected people, as if they were now almost my constituents, and with gratification would I hail the day of entirely assuming on my part the relative duty existing between representative and constituent—the day when all division lines shall be obliterated, when good old Maryland shall have restored to her mangled bosom these wandering children of hers, who, like the tribes of Israel, might again receive their rights in the fond and affectionate embrace of their father land!

Friends and opponents are equally astonished why it is, that under the very throne of power and patronage, and notwithstanding so many inducements of public office and pecuniary reward for the last sixteen years to the contrary, there should be found within that District so many fast, devoted, ardent, yes, ardent and sincere friends of Henry Clay. The problem is easily solved. It is an instinct as well of the human heart as an inclination of the reason of man, to sympathize with the persecuted, whether that persecution be directed against particular societies or particular individuals. The people of Washington are the living witnesses of the persecution, nay, more, of the calumny and detraction heaped upon the name and fame and character of Henry Clay. They have heard him and seen him struggling and battling for right and freedom during thirty long and eventful years; they have stood beside him in the approaching crisis of their country's dissolution, watching, sleepless and almost heartless, the eventful moment, and they have seen that crisis met and overcome by his eloquence, his wisdom, his devotion to the Union! They know those detractions to be falsehoods, and living in sight of the very theatre of his glory and renown, they nobly dare to brand them as such! We read that the brave Manlius of old, who so successfully resolved to defend the citadel of Rome to the last against the fire and sword of the ruthless Gaul, and who cast headlong from the Tarpeian rock those bloody invaders of his country, was himself afterwards condemned by the people to be cast as a criminal from that same rock upon which he had before so signally triumphed in the defeat of his enemies. Before the Prætor pronounced the sentence, Manlius arose, and turning to the people, bade them behold that citadel that towered above their heads, and demanded of them how they could condemn him in the very sight of that rock, at once a monument of their own deliverance, and of his glory and innocence. The people remembered the services, the deeds of heroism there performed, and with tears in their eyes revoked the unjust sentence recorded against him; nor would they ever afterwards pronounce sentence against him in sight of that citadel. The people of the District of Columbia live in the very sight of our Capitol of our country; they have within its halls been eye-witnesses of Henry Clay's successful endeavors in twice saving the Union. They remember the many triumphs of his matchless intellect, the many evidences of his honest heart and undaunted courage; and whilst alone upon a stony remnant of that magnificent edifice, telling them that there, in their very midst, stands at once a monument of their country's pride and of Henry Clay's renown, they can not, they will not, in honesty and in conscience, be guilty of any base ingratitude to that patriot and statesman; for, in blackening the fame of Henry Clay, they first must batter down the walls of that Capitol, which, so long as the last crumbling column remains, so will there be a monument of his labors, his services, his eloquence, his renown, and his exertions in behalf of mankind! So long will it stand, like the Tarpeian rock of old, an ever speaking memorial of his fidelity and services in behalf of his country.

During the delivery of these remarks, the honorable gentleman was repeatedly cheered by his warm and numerous friends of the District, who were there in godly numbers.

FAITHFUL OFFICERS.—We hear that yesterday the accounts of the late Collector of this port, Mr. Curtis, and the Cashier, Mr. Satterlee, were made up—that they balanced to a fraction, and that the amount found due to the United States, some $3,000, was paid into Bank, and the certificate, with duplicates, sent on to the Treasury.

This is the close of a Whig officer's career, who has received and paid over more than forty millions of dollars.

We shall hope the close of his successor's career, on the 4th of March next, or within a very few days thereafter, may be as clear.—N. Y. Am.

MR. POLK ON THE TARIFF.—The subjoined, from the Nashville Whig, ought to be read by every voter:

By the efforts of the Democratic presses, the impression is gaining ground in the Tariff States, that Mr. Polk is opposed to disturbing the present tariff law. The friends of protection should understand Mr. Polk's position on the subject. Let it, therefore, be borne in mind, that his own language, delivered on various occasions, is, "I am opposed to a tariff for Protection." "I have at all times been opposed to the Protective Policy." "I am in favor of repealing that act." With these declarations staring them in the face, Democratic papers have the hardihood to represent Col. Polk as opposed to disturbing the present tariff law, and in favor of the amplest incidental Protection to American Industry. Can Colonel Polk, who has so repeatedly announced his opposition to the protective policy, suffer his opinions to be thus misrepresented!

The Boston Atlas says that a lady in Northampton, who is a good painter, was employed a few days since to draft and paint a Loco-motive engine. After having completed it, she sent it to her employer, accompanied with a note, saying it was the first Loco she had ever seen having a good and proper motive.

LITTLE TENNESSEE.—We hear from this remote country, from which we hear generally more slowly than from Europe, that the Whigs are increasing in numbers and in zeal. Wyndham Robertson, Esq., Mr. Watson, of Abingdon, and various other distinguished Whigs of that region, were to visit the county of Lee on invitation, and we shall doubtless hear of glorious results.—Throughout Little Tennessee, the most powerful voting quarter of the State, our information leads us to believe that the progress of Whig principles is steady and sure; nor would we exchange Whig acquisitions in that tier of counties alone, for all the Calhoun men and Texas speculators who have abandoned or may abandon the Whig party.

Richmond Whig.

A REALLY GOOD ARTICLE.—Always anxious to benefit our readers in every possible way, we would now recommend to their notice an article prepared by Kansas & Stevens, Druggists, which is fully deserving of confidence and every way worthy to be relied on. We mean the Dandelion and Tomato Panacea. Compounded from nine of the best medicines produced in the vegetable kingdom; the Dandelion, Tomato, and Sarsaparilla forming the chief ingredients, which are well known and universally admitted to contain the most healthful properties the science of medicine has yet discovered. We called at the store of these gentlemen yesterday and had the pleasure of perusing letters, some of which were from Physicians of the highest respectability, and others from gentlemen of undoubted integrity, all speaking in the highest terms of the good effects of the medicine. They also hold in their possession, innumerable certificates from persons, some with whom we are acquainted, and in whose word we can place the fullest confidence of the wonderful cures performed by its use; such as Asthma, Erysipelas, Dyspepsia, Salt Rheum, Chronic Diseases, Rheumatism, Scrofula, and all for impurities of the blood, and from our own knowledge and confidence in the gentlemen who prepare the medicine and the trial we have had of its virtues, we have no hesitation in recommending it as one of the best alternatives and purifiers of the blood now before the public. For anything in the apothecary line, we would recommend the store of these gentlemen, 325 Washington street, as inferior to none in this city; their high moral worth and strict integrity being sufficient guaranty to the public against any attempt at imposition.

In copying the above from the Mail, we are happy in being able to endorse every word of it, having tried the Dandelion and Tomato Panacea ourselves with the happiest effects. The proprietors are really deserving of patronage, and we are sure their success will crown their efforts. Give them a call at their store, Amory Hall buildings, 325 Washington street, second door north of West street.—Daily Times.

ALLEBAS'S HEALTH PILLS.

ARE regarded as one of the most remarkable medicines in this country. They are an effective cathartic, though mild in their operation; they cleanse the stomach and purify the blood; they correct the entire system; regulating the nerves; giving life and energy to the digestive organs; cleanse and heal diseased lungs and liver, cure bilious and other fevers, dyspepsia, headache, dizziness in the head, jaundice, costiveness, fever and ague, worms, colds &c. &c. No family will be without them after one trial. See Pamphlet. For sale by

AN ADDITIONAL FACT.

OUR readers have doubtless perceived that of late weeks our columns are much more lively than they have been before. Perhaps they imagine we employed new editors, but if so they are mistaken; for the old editor is still at his post, and only differs from his former self, inasmuch as he used to trust to his own genius, but now writes under the inspiration of PETERS' CORDIAL LOZENGES. They are likewise glorious things for driving away dull care. Armed with a box of them, duns and disasters have no terror for us, and we feel as happy as an opium-eater in a dream of heaven. We will add that these wonderful Lozenges are for sale at

LOCAL NEWS.

THE CLUB HOUSE

is progressing rapidly to its completion—a large number of our worthy Whig mechanics having been busily engaged during the day in laying the floor, putting in windows, &c. The old spirit of 1840 is awake—and we will shortly have a place to gather together in the good cause, and give our friends, the Loco Polks, a little more of Whig music in responsive shouts to the Whigs of the Union, as the news of triumph shall pour in—which, whilome, as Vancutrators, used to occasion them so much uneasiness.

EXCURSION TO SAND SHOAL INLET, &c.—Captain Mitchell, with his good steamer, the Oseola, offers to our citizens a delightful excursion to Sand Shoal Inlet, &c. The boat will leave this city on Tuesday morning next, and return on Friday—see the advertisement.

SANDS'S SARSAPARILLA.—An eminent writer observes, that if a man in Europe were to go to bed with the conviction that China would be swallowed up by an earthquake that night, he would be less affected than by the knowledge that his own little finger would be amputated the next morning. It is strange, with all this selfishness, that men should take so little pains to guard against disease, and to arrest its progress. A specific for that terrible scourge of the human family, Scrofula, has lately been discovered, and yet the statistics of our hospitals and other charitable institutions, as well as the general bills of mortality, shows that this disease annually destroys whole hcatombs of victims. In Sands's Sarsaparilla a certain and speedy remedy is provided for Scrofula and all other disorders originating in unhealthy secretions, and a diseased condition of the vital fluid. The numerous testimonials of the extraordinary cures it has wrought, and the increasing demand for this valuable preparation abundantly attest its value.

Prepared and sold, wholesale and retail, by A. B. & D. SANDS, Wholesale Druggists, 79 Fulton st., New York. Price $1 per bottle; 6 bottles for $5.

PLEASURE EXCURSION

To Old Point, Norfolk, and Sand Shoal Inlet.

The steamer OSCEOLA will leave Washington on Tuesday next, July 16, at 9 o'clock in the morning, and Alexandria at 9, on a pleasure trip to the above-named places. She will arrive in Norfolk early next morning, giving passengers time to visit the Navy Yard and the big ship Pennsylvania; and leave Norfolk at 11 o'clock same morning for Sand Shoal Inlet, and remain there until the next evening, giving the passengers a fine opportunity for bathing, fishing, and shooting, as the Inlet abounds with clams, oysters, hog-fish, sheephead, &c., with a great variety of plover and snipe. There is also a fine house of entertainment. This will be the most pleasant and interesting trip that can be taken from this section of the country.

Returning, the Osceola will leave Norfolk on Thursday evening at 5 o'clock, and arrive in Washington next morning; and leave next morning, as usual, for Norfolk.

Passage and fare $7; for a gentleman and lady $10. The Marine Band will be in attendance.

ISLAND HOUSE, JACKSON CITY.

JAS. McGRATH, of the Washington Coffee House has the pleasure to inform his friends and the public generally that he has recently taken and fitted up for their benefit and enjoyment a House at the southern end of the Long Bridge, (Jackson City,) to which he respectfully solicits their attention and patronage.—The adjacent grounds are prettily laid off, directly on the river, with large shady trees and green lawn, continually refreshed with a fine breeze. A beautiful prospect is also afforded of the shores of the Potomac from the heights above Georgetown to a considerable distance below Washington, and of the surrounding hills and country seats.

Gentlemen will find it a pleasant ride or walk in the morning or afternoon, and they can employ themselves in fishing or other amusements—the necessary materials therefore being at their disposal free of expense. The Alexandria stages pass every evening at 7 o'clock, so that a conveyance to Washington can always be had. The bar is well supplied.

A great desire having been expressed for a place of resort from the heat of the city, Mr. McGRATH hopes that in this instance his endeavors to please the taste of the public will not be disappointed.

ENGRAVING AND CARD PRINTING!—NO REMOVAL!

I HAVE noticed the advertisement of a certain engraver in the Standard, in which he states that "several persons have been in the habit of passing off work as the production of his hands, and that he does not hold himself responsible for any work that does not come from his office." This is to inform the public that I have done considerable card printing for this same individual, which he no doubt passed off as work done at his own office, but for the future I shall decline doing any work for him whatever. The public can be accommodated with card printing in the very latest style, by sending their orders to my shop direct. Prices moderate, work promptly done, and no humbug.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that on SATURDAY, the 13th inst., at 3 o'clock, P. M. there will be a grand rally of the Whigs of Spaulding's District, at Grimes' Post Office, (Cross Roads,) for the purpose of forming a CLAY CLUB.

Several gentlemen will be present, who will address the meeting, and among the number, your distinguished representative in Congress, the Hon. J. M. S. CAUSIN.

There will also be a discussion by gentlemen of both political parties.

The incalculable benefits arising from these associations in 1840, must still be fresh in the recollection of all, and we trust that every good and true Whig will be punctual in his attendance on that occasion.
